

Handy Mandy in Oz by Ruth Plumly Thompson

Read by Phil Chenevert. Total running time: 04:07:30

On many a day had Handy, the Goat Girl of Mern, pursued her goats up and down the rocky eminences of her native mountain. And never—NEVER—in her fourteen or so years' experience had she been blown up by a mountain spring. But there comes, in every one's experience a day which is unlike every other day, and so it was with the Goat Girl. As she was pursuing What-a-butter, her favorite goat, there was a sudden crash, a wish, and up flew the slab of rock on which she was standing, up and away. The adventures into which she was carried by this simple though awefull beginning take a whole book to relate. How she met Nox the Royal Ox of Keretaria, how together they went in search of little King Kerry, how at last they rescued him and found themselves feted guests of Ozma of Oz, all these things you must read for yourselves.

This recording is in the public domain and may be reproduced, distributed, or modified without permission. For more information or to volunteer, visit librivox.org. Cover picture by John R. Neill (1937). Copyright expired in U.S. Cover design by David Purdy. This design is in the public domain.

Handy Mandy in Oz – Ruth Plumly Thompson

Handy Mandy in Oz – Ruth Plumly Thompson